ABSTRACT

An image forming device having an image forming section for forming an image corresponding to image data on a copy sheet and a storing section capable of storing and accumulating a plurality of jobs including image data of one or a plurality of images. This image forming device is capable of arbitrarily selecting a combination of jobs from among the jobs stored in the storing section and instructing to combine the selected plurality of jobs. When combination of the jobs is instructed, the designated jobs are read out from the storing section and given to the image forming section.